A. By Genre

The serial has been a staple of BBC Radio since the first years of broadcasting. Traditionally, like its early cinema counterpart, it hooks your audience by keeping it in suspense and wanting more. Many of the first novels were written and published in serial form and work well in what is perhaps the most imaginative theatrical medium- the radio.

The majority of serials are 60' or 30' in length. Programmes have been divided into a number of different genres.

1. The Classic Serial

The BBC has long been renowned for its adaptations of the great works of fiction, from the earliest works of the classical writers to the first novels of the eighteenth century, through the great Victorian writers to the modern American and European classics.

Using some of the most accomplished writers and actors of today, the quality of these serials makes them some of the most popular dramas transmitted.

2. Crime And Thrillers

The crime serial comes in a wide range of styles and includes the best and most popular detectives in a much-loved genre. Hercules Poirot, Philip Marlowe, V.I. Warshawski and Lord Peter Wimsey are familiar figures to aficionados and radio brings their distinctive worlds to life.

Francis Durbridge's "Paul Temple" stories are radio originals, while serial adaptation makes the surprises in a Dick Francis novel genuinely nerve-jangling.

Other best-selling masters of the thriller - Alistair MacLean with his war-time adventure stories and Robert Harris with his intriguing "what-if" fiction - complete a range of programmes where entertainment and genuine suspense sit side by side.

7. World Theatre

Within this genre are plays by the great dramatists from the age of Shakespeare onwards. Beginning with Shakespeare himself we offer vintage and legendary productions through to the most recent by Kenneth Branagh. After Shakespeare, there is a huge range of styles from the bawdy Restoration to the civilised wits of the 18th century, from the great Scandinavian realists to the wealth of 20th century theatre.

The emphasis is on entertainment - great performances and writing - with some unashamed audience pleasers, that are constantly revived on television and in the cinema.

All the plays in this genre are 75 minutes or over and duration does vary considerably.

A. The Plays Of William Shakespeare

As You Like It 135' 1978	A quadrophonic production of this delicate pastoral comedy.	CN3161, (WT263)
Hamlet 195' 1975	This vintage 1948 recording was made when John Gielgud's performance, widely acclaimed as the greatest of our time, had reached its peak.	CN2456, (WT240)
Hamlet 225' 1992	Kenneth Branagh with the Renaissance Theatre Company in an all-star cast.	TCD0449, (WT355)
Henry V 195' 1976	One of the most heroic of the history plays.	CN2684, (WT250)
Julius Ceasar 150' 1972	The earliest of Shakespeare's Roman plays, dealing with the assassination of Ceasar and the civil war that followed it. The text is uncut in this production.	CN1655, (WT184)
King Lear 180' 1994	A stunning performance by John Gielgud in tragedy's most demanding role.	TCD0803, (WT361)

Macbeth 120' 1966	Paul Scofield and Peggy Ashcroft co-star in this tragedy of ambition and witchcraft. CN0563, (WT162)
The Merchant Of Venice 165' 1977	Alan Badel is Shylock, with his daughter Sarah Badel and Anna Massey co-starring in this powerful drama. CN3001, (WT257)
A Mid-Summer Night's Dream 135' 1970	This most magical of fairy-tale comedies in a stereo production, with original music by Anthony Bernard. CN1448, (WT180)
Much Ado About Nothing 135' 1970	The witty sparring between Beatrice and Benedick eventually leads to true love, as Shakespeare's comedy darkens. This production stars Fenella Fielding, Paul Daneman and Ralph Richardson. CN1157, (WT169)
Richard III 120' 1985	Perhaps Shakespeare's most memorable villain, magnetic, evil and almost comic in his ambition to gain the crown. Simon Callow stars in one of his finest roles. CN4544, (WT314)
The Tempest 120' 1988	Forty-one years after his definitive Hamlet, Gielgud gives another great performance as Prospero, who rules over Shakespeare's enchanted island. CN5277, (WT338)
The Tragedy Of Coriolanus 180' 1979	Richard Pasco is Coriolanus in one of Shakespeare's most contemporary political tragedies, set in ancient Rome. CN3892, (WT291)

B. Other Global Playwrights

Accidental Death Of An Anarchist by Dario Fo 75' 1993	Farce meets political satire in Dario Fo's comedy, with Adrian Edmondson as The Maniac. TCD0470, (WT356)
The Admirable Crichton by J.M. Barrie 90' 1974	The social tables are turned as a shipwreck makes a butler king of a desert island. This comedy, written in 1902, pokes fun at the class barriers of the Edwardian era. CN2007, (WT214)

Accolades 1 x 45' 2007	In 1973, Oxford academic A. L. Rowse published the work that would establish his name internationally - Shakespeare the Man, in which he claimed to have decoded Shakespeare's sonnets and finally discovered the identity of the playwright's mysterious Dark Lady. But was this 'discovery' based on a simple misreading? Accolades was the last drama completed by Ian Richardson, one of Britain's finest classical actors, recorded just three weeks before he died in 2007.	DR0183
The Alibi by Daphne du Maurier 45' 2007	Charles Fenton feels trapped. Trapped in his job. Trapped in his marriage. How can he escape the stultifying routine? With a little random murder, perhaps?	DR0176
Amadeus by Peter Shaffer 120' 1983	In 18th century Vienna, Salieri is driven to madness by his jealousy of Mozart's genius, with the National Theatre cast.	CN4282, (WT306)
The Beaux Stratagem by George Farquhar 90'	Restoration comedy showing two young gallants in search of a rich wife.	PC0113, (WT132)
1962

The Birds by Daphne du Maurier 60' 2007	Du Maurier's celebrated horror story, set in Cornwall just after the Second World War, paints a terrifying picture of the natural world turning on mankind.	DR0174
Blood Wedding by Federico Garcia Lorca 90'	A tragedy on the theme of honour and passion set in rural Spain with Anna Massey and Juliet Stevenson.	CN5003, (WT331)
The Cherry Orchard by Anton Chekhov 120'	Chekhov's greatest and most atmospheric play.	CN5051, (WT332)
The Country Wife by William Wycherly 120'	A bawdy wit, a cynical mind and a merciless eye for human foibles are the hallmarks of this Restoration comedy, perfect for the talents of Maggie Smith.	CN4889, (WT326)
Death And The Maiden by Ariel Dorfman 90'	The powerful after-effects of torture, as Juliet Stevenson repeats her award-winning stage performance.	TCD0921, (WT362)

B. By Duration

The best adaptations from the stage or original scripts

Single plays are broken down into genres so that they may be used within series. In this selection 52 weeks are offered for the first three genres, the fourth an example of more creative scheduling and the last a seasonal Christmas offering. However much more is available as required and within each genre there is great diversity, allowing considerable flexibility of scheduling.

1. 15 minutes

An experienced dramatist can accomplish a lot in fifteen minutes as the plays in this genre amply demonstrate. Having much in common with the short story these plays are ideal for scheduling before significant times - "Up To the Hour", "Just Before Midnight" - and are suitable for all times of the day. Also in this genre are two top quality dramatised serials which confirm the emphasis on entertainment and the considerable variety on offer.

3. 60 Minutes

The plays in this suggested slot are divided into four different 13 week seasons:

- A. Radio Originals - specially written for the medium, well-received by audiences and sprinkled with award-winners.
- B. Matinee - those plays that have been and remain much-loved theatrical classics, revived constantly and highly popular.
- C. World Theatre Hour - drama about and from around the world - which brings an exotic feel to this group of plays.
- D. Adaptations - usually of much-loved classic novels or stories which transfer easily and with great style into the radio medium.

Together they form a diverse collection of highly entertaining productions and performances, all at 60 minutes.

- The Vicissitudes of Evangeline
by Elinor Glyn
60'
Evangeline is a red-haired, green eyed young lady who, cast out into the world to seek her fortune, resolves to become an adventuress; refusing to behave as young unmarried women in the early 1900's should do. Elinor Glyn dedicated this novel to all the women with red hair. With three eligible young men at her beck and call, which one will Evangeline choose?
DR0096
- Walk Right By Me
1 x 60'
A compelling insight into the life of a passionate, eccentric and lonely man. You could easily think that Warren and Carol are an item. Her clothes are in his wardrobe, her hair is on his hairbrush, but something's not quite right about their relationship – maybe it's the fact that they've never met...
Gary Oldman is well known for playing quirky, obsessive characters. His films include Francis Ford Coppola's Dracula and his debut as a director, Nil By Mouth.
DR0125
- What I Heard
About Iraq
2007
What I Heard About Iraq uses a devastatingly simple idea - direct quotes from politicians, military chiefs, U.S. soldiers and Iraqi citizens - to explore the human story behind the U.S. invasion of Iraq. Eliot Weinberg's work, which started out as an article in The London Review of Books, has become a global phenomenon - translated into dozens of languages and performed on stage around the world.
